

PREPARED FOR MICHELLE CAMPION, ARDÁN COLLECTIVE

Build the Ardán marketing team you never had

A small marketing department, built for Ardán and handed to your team: an AI lifecycle marketer, a copywriter for every property, a website builder, and a campaign manager tying it together. This is the plan, and the ways to start.

Quality first, then automate

IRELAND'S MARKETER OF THE YEAR, 2022

Before I build anything, I ask one question: what does really good look like here? Not what AI can do, but the best version of this marketing, and the level of quality I would want to stand over.

So I start where I always have. If there were no AI at all, what team would I hire to do this properly? An email marketer, a copywriter for each property, someone to build and run the websites, someone running the whole calendar. I map that team first, then build exactly it, with agents instead of hires.

Twenty years in brand is what tells me where the bar sits: Head of Brand at O2 Ireland, then CMO at the National Lottery, Head of Brand at Indeed and Miro, both global roles. Positioning, messaging and tone are written first, then built into everything the agents make.

Five weeks in, eighteen properties, very little structure

Everything here comes from our conversation. A newly formed group, eighteen properties from pubs with rooms to the flagship houses, a near-empty mailing list, and a team of four already stretched, one of them full-time just keeping websites and booking engines in step. You need structure across the whole group, fast, without ever losing the human welcome that makes the places what they are. Here are the products I'd recommend, each configured for Ardán and handed to your team.

- 01 Lifecycle Agent. The guest emails that drive repeat and direct bookings: welcome, pre-arrival, post-stay, win-back, written and run per property.
 - 02 Copywriter, one per property. Web copy, emails, offers and social, each in that property's own voice, at the volume a group this size needs.
 - 03 Website Builder. Takes the brief, does the UX and UI, builds the pages and pushes them live. Booking engines untouched.
 - 04 Campaign Manager. Where the agents stop being separate: it tracks all of them together and becomes your one source of truth, with the dashboards to match.

Four agents, configured for Ardán

AGENT 01

Lifecycle Agent

Before AI, doing this properly meant a full-time hire, an agency, or a freelancer: someone whose whole job was the guest emails that drive repeat and direct bookings. It gets skipped, because it never stops. For Ardán it barely exists yet, a near-empty MailChimp across eighteen properties.

The agent does the heavy lifting: writing every email, and building the sequences and triggers inside a tool like Klaviyo. The part that needs judgement, the writing, is where the quality goes in, every email in that property's voice. And it never stops optimising: it reads what earns direct bookings and keeps tuning the timing, the trigger and the copy.

Uses: your own Klaviyo · Avvio + Guestline booking data · each property's voice guide. The human welcome stays human.

AGENT 02

Copywriter, one per property

Nearly all marketing needs writing at some point. Before AI, companies' options were limited: a full-time copywriter most groups cannot justify, a freelancer, an agency, or having a go yourself. And good writing, writing that carries an insight, is relevant and accurate, and holds your positioning, takes real time and craft.

A copywriter built specifically for your brand writes web copy, emails, offers and captions, all in your voice. And because a Georgian house does not sound like a pub with rooms, you get a writer for every property, each trained on that property's own voice, all obeying the group framework. Your team approves every line.

Uses: your own Claude · each property's voice guide · the group messaging framework.

AGENT 03

Website Builder

In a world before AI, a new property site meant a web designer, a front-end developer and a producer. The Website Builder is that whole role in one: it takes the brief, does the UX and UI, builds the pages to your brand, and pushes them live to hosting. Booking stays on Avvio, untouched.

On our call you named a property and, a few minutes later, a Bellinter page was live. Being straight: that was roughly five minutes of work with no proper brief, just to show what is possible. A real property site means a proper brief, the right photography, agreed navigation and real content. A briefed build is a different, better thing.

Uses: your own Claude · Vercel hosting · does the work of a designer, a developer and a producer.

AGENT 04

Campaign Manager

This is where the separate agents stop being separate. On their own, the Lifecycle Agent, the Website Builder and a Copywriter each do their job. Run them together and the work compounds, and that is what the Campaign Manager runs: it plans, makes the work with the other agents, and tracks how every one of them is doing, in one place your team approves from.

You see the whole operation at once: what each agent shipped, what came back, what needs a decision this week, across eighteen properties without eighteen status meetings. It is a system composed of the other agents, and it becomes your one source of truth.

Uses: the other agents · your positioning, messaging and tone · your channel accounts.

Build the whole system, or start with one or two

Two ways in, and both leave you owning what we build, in your own tools, in your name. My honest recommendation is to start small: a proof of concept on a single brand, the website and the lifecycle emails that only really work when they work together, then scope the full department from what you learn.

OPTION A · PROOF OF CONCEPT

One brand: a website and lifecycle, working together

- › A new website for one of your brands, built and live
- › The Lifecycle Agent for that same brand
- › The two linked: guests arrive on the new site, the flows follow them
- › That property's brand and voice decoded, so both are properly on brand

€15,000 + VAT

Tools (Klaviyo, Claude Code, hosting) are separate, sized and agreed with you.

OPTION B · THE MARKETING DEPARTMENT

The whole system, across the group

- › The Website Builder, the Lifecycle Agent and a Copywriter per property
- › The Campaign Manager tying it together as your one source of truth
- › Rolled out property by property, in the order that earns it
- › Your team trained to run all of it

€12,000 per month

× four months = €48,000 + VAT

Scoped with you first. Tools separate, as above.

WHAT THE PRICE COVERS

The build, the decoding, the linking, the handover and the training. You are buying the system and the capability your team is left with.

WHAT IT DOESN'T

Your own tool subscriptions: Klaviyo, Claude Code and hosting, which stay in your name and your ownership. A modest, predictable software bill, sized and agreed with you before a euro is spent.
