

PREPARED FOR DAVE HACKETT, DATA INTELLIGENCE

Build the Data Intelligence marketing team you never had

A small marketing team, built for Data Intelligence and handed over. First the thinking: positioning, messaging and a marketing strategy to own the conversation on controlling technology costs. Then two agents that run it, a Ghostwriter that builds the name and a Campaign Manager that plans and tracks the lot. This is the plan, and how it works.

Quality first, then automate

IRELAND'S MARKETER OF THE YEAR, 2022

Before I build anything, I ask one question: what does really good look like here? Not what AI can do, but the best version of this marketing, and the level of quality I would want to stand over.

So I start where I always have. If there were no AI at all, what team would I hire to do this properly? A strategist to set the positioning and the plan, someone building your authority in public, and someone running the campaigns and keeping score. I map that team first, then build exactly it, with agents instead of hires.

Twenty years in brand is what tells me where the bar sits: Head of Brand at O2 Ireland, then CMO at the National Lottery, Head of Brand at Indeed and Miro, both global roles. Positioning, messaging and tone are written first, then built into everything the agents make.

"Paul reported into me as Head of Brand when I was at Indeed. I have learned more from him than anyone else in my career."

Paul D'Arcy · CMO, Moloco. Former CMO at Miro and Indeed

A new company, a clear space to own, and no time to waste.

Everything here comes from our conversation. Data Intelligence is starting from a blank page, and that is the opportunity: no one yet owns the conversation about controlling technology costs, and you want to be the name that does, quickly. The thinking has to come first, the positioning and the plan, or the marketing is just noise. Then the machine to run it, so a small team can execute every day without starting from scratch each time. Here is what I'd build, the foundation first, then the two agents that run it, each configured for you and handed to your team.

- 01 The foundation. Positioning, messaging framework and marketing strategy. What Data Intelligence stands for, which trigger points it owns, and the plan to build fame and market share. The source of truth everything else runs on.
 - 02 Ghostwriter. Turns Dave's point of view into LinkedIn posts and a newsletter, provocative and authoritative, building the name and moving followers onto an owned list.
 - 03 Campaign Manager. Plans and tracks the whole operation in one place, runs the Ghostwriter today, and is ready to run more agents as you add them.

The foundation, then two agents

PART 01

The foundation

Before a single agent gets built, we do the thinking. In a world before AI, this is the work you would hire a brand strategist and a CMO to do: decide what Data Intelligence stands for, who it is for, and which moments it wants to own. It is the part that makes everything after it good.

You want to be the name that comes to mind the moment a company realises its technology spend is out of control. We set the positioning, write the messaging framework, and build the marketing strategy, so the agents are not guessing. They run a plan, in a voice, against triggers we have chosen on purpose.

Delivers: a positioning statement · a messaging framework · a marketing plan · the source of truth the agents read before they make anything.

AGENT 02

Ghostwriter

Data Intelligence has a point of view worth hearing, and a founder who has watched the problem up close. But authority only compounds if the point of view gets published, and that takes Dave's time plus a ghostwriter most new companies do not have.

The Ghostwriter turns Dave's view into a steady stream of LinkedIn posts and a newsletter, in his own voice, provocative enough to get noticed and authoritative enough to be trusted. LinkedIn builds the name; the newsletter moves followers onto a list Data Intelligence owns. It never invents a view or a claim; it publishes his.

Uses: your own Claude · Dave's point of view and voice notes · an owned email newsletter. Gate: Dave approves every piece before it publishes.

AGENT 03

Campaign Manager

A marketing plan is only as good as the running of it. The Campaign Manager is where the plan stops being a document: it plans the campaigns that build the name, makes the work with the Ghostwriter, and tracks how every piece is doing, in one place your team approves from.

It refers to your positioning, messaging and tone before it does anything, so every plan is grounded in your own strategy. Today it runs the Ghostwriter; add an Outbound or an Ads Agent later and it plans and tracks those too. Your junior marketer runs the approvals day to day; Paul reviews it once a month.

Uses: your own Claude · your source of truth · your email platform and LinkedIn. Gates: you approve the plan, every piece, and the go-live.

One engagement, in two parts

This is not a menu to choose from, it is one piece of work with two phases. First I build the foundation and the two agents, and hand them over, in your own tools, in your name. Then I stay on as your fractional CMO, a couple of days a month, so the system keeps improving and whoever runs it has a senior marketing head to go to.

PART ONE · THE BUILD

The foundation and both agents, built and handed over

- › Positioning, messaging framework and marketing strategy
- › The Ghostwriter, trained on Dave's voice, building the name
- › The Campaign Manager, planning and tracking the whole operation
- › Your team trained to run all of it

€15,000 + VAT

A one-off project. Tools (Claude Code, hosting, email platform) are separate, sized and agreed with you.

PART TWO · THEN, ONGOING

Fractional CMO, two days a month

- › Two days a month, once the build is live
- › Training and steering your junior marketer
- › Optimising the marketing plans as they run
- › A senior marketing head on call for the team

€3,000 per month

Month to month, begins once the build is handed over.
Tools separate, as above.

WHAT THE PRICE COVERS

The thinking, the two agents, the handover and the training, then a senior head kept on the work every month. You own the system and the strategy it runs on.

WHAT IT DOESN'T

Your own tool subscriptions: Claude Code, hosting and the email platform, which stay in your name and your ownership. A modest, predictable software bill, sized and agreed with you before a euro is spent.
